The Rise and Fall of a Young Man Told in Two Chapters.

William Hanry has decided to go to the city.

William Henry had been reared on a he said unto his father:

"Stern parent, I have torigil at this oid grew in the challow of the barn. I have persued the buff hea when my whole heart yearned for acuipture and for art; I have hanied the drab-tinted mule out of the creek at the ellent midnight hour when my coni cried out for poetry and cong I have wetched the polks flot hogs as they fed on the mendow, and as they subgled with the and eyed caws when my being longed for the solace of art. I have worn my young He a we chopping holes in ele loga when I sighed in my neart for the healing baim of literature, so if you will fork out a great arge fifty dollar bill with green letters on it, I will away and seek fame and fortune."

How the Opinm Habit of Long Standing Was Cured Easily and Effectively.

There can be little doubt that much of the dietress resulting from abelinence from an accustomed stimulant, whatever It he, is due to imegination, and in some cases victims of the bebit have cured themselves by the exertion simply of a strong determination to take no more. In a lerge number of cases, however, the indulgence has produced a complete paralysis of will power, and then some method of judicious medical treatment is necessary, although even then auccess does not always follow. An account of an ingenion a mode of effecting the cure of a long indulged opium habit fa given in the Medical World by Dr. R If Dalton. The patient was first allowed for a week to take her usual quantity of mor- tirely different a zes. phing in the form of a mixture containing also fire drops of max vousion and one un rier grain of quintue in each doze, and cilored with tincture of levender. Then for twenty we ke the amount of merphine was lessened every seventh day by onetwentieth, and, at the same time, the tinc ture increased by one drop and the quinive by one quarter grain at each change, un'il the morphine was left entirely out. In the mean time, however, the quinine was not augmented after the ninth week, but ten drops of their of vitriol edded to each dose taken afterwards. The diminution of the morphine was minnte and gradual, and the teste being the same, the petient was unable to detect any change whatever during the four months' trestment. As econ Dr. Dalton became attlefied that the habit was entirely in the mind, he announced that she had not taken a particle of mor phine for two weeks. As soon as she un derstood this the spell was broken, and she wanted no more morphine, her health had become very much improved, and her gratitude seemed unbounded. Dr. Daiton thinks that if recourse to atimulante be prevented during the curing of the oplum habit, any physicien may succeed with this plan. - eum of money to which he had heard that Britleh and Colonial Druggiet.

HARVEY PASH paid the penalty that ought always to be suffered for murder, at Greer had both legs cut off, and three Bardetown Friday. Unfortunately in this as well as most other Stales it only falls to the lot of the poor whites and negroes to thus suffer. Pash was a negro and murdered a fellow laborer of his own color in the coldest of blood. He professed the Catholic faith and died clutching at the crucifix. The sheriff did his work welt and the neck being broken the yictim died in a few min-

It is to be boped that the bill to redeem trade dollers at their full value, that has been introduced in the Senate by Mr. Seweil, will not become a law. It is entirely in the interest of the money sharks, who will make from 15 to 25 cents on the dollar if it does. The poor people who have been the iceers will not get any advantage from it, as they had to take what they could get for the iniquitous coin when it was passed upon them.

Ir takes a good deal of money to run the 'best government the world ever saw." Congrees costs the country aunually $5,500,000; the executive department $125,000; the treasury department $140,000,000 and so on, until the enormous sum of $325,000, 000 is reached as the annual expense. This ie more than a million dollars for every working day in the year and the amount is constantiv growing.

A FREEDOM AND HILARITY THAT IS FOREIGN TO AMERICA.

The Peasantry at the Side Shows, on the Roller Coasters and the Merry-Go-Rounds-A Festival for the People at Large-At Church.

On Sunday morning we attended service at the Palace church in Munich. Every seat was occupied, and crowds of peasants and other visitors stood in the aisles. The officiating priest wore a magnificent role, a mass of gold embroidery, in keeping with the richness of the church interior. But what was most impressive was the fact that now and then a peasant woman, in her picturesque attine, would leave the crowd, and, advancing reverontly to the steps of the altar, would kneel there in devout worship, visible to the entire congregation, and yet utterly unconscious of aught save the solemaity of this nunual privilege-a privilege to excite the wonder and envy of home-staying neighbors in remote Bavarian villages and Tyrolian forest homes.

On other Sundays In such churches one sees no peasants at the nitar of a royal church-at least, this was the only oceasion on which we saw this close intermingling of patrician and peasant life, and this phase of its exhibition was more in teresting than that revealed by the volks fest in nil its mad joliity. There is a reason for tids. Such a festival indicates in itself a wide license in personal intercourse—a freedom and hilarity of manner that is foreign to America and which shocks the American visitor by its reckless lack of restraint. But within the clinrel walls or in the picture galleries one sees peasantry in a dignified aspect. and associates it with the reverence accorded to the place. It would be happed lile to bring within a narrow space two sider conceptions of art than that revealed by this church interlor with its marbles and frescoes and gorgeous vestments on the one hand, and the pleturesque peasant atilre on the other-attire snactioned by tradition, and reverently adhered to even in this world of art forms which Munich certainty is.

PICTURESCUE PEASANT ATTIRE.

Over a bright skirt of oue color there is a bodice of another: this bodice is laced across the front with a silver chain, or heid together by clasps of silver set with jewels. A gay sllk kerebief is folded about the neck and shoulders. At the back the corner in caught up into a fold and held by a similar elasp, while silver boads, also jeweled, adorn

In the hair jeweled combs are worn, with long streamers of wide ribbon. The waist coats of the men flash with a profusion of silver button, exquisitely carved and frequently set with jewels. The stockings are not entire, as with no. They are simply embroidered buckskin or silk shapes made to lace over the calf, leaving the nnkle and knee perfectly bare, and the name, interaily translated, is "caif stockings." The low shoes, short knee breeches, and jaunty bat, with a little feather on one side, make a pie turesque toilet. In some districts the woolen hats have such broad brims that they protrude beyond the shoulders, and a produce an exceedingly grotesque effect. The little children whom we saw with their parents were simply miniature men and women, repeating the costumes of their elders.

The festival was just what its name linplies—a festival for the people at large, and Brookfield.—Danbury Evening News. In its linumerable side shows, relier cousters, merry-go-rounds, etc., suggested an American agricultural fair. Each booth offered for sale its peculiar kind of wares; everybody laughed and jested and sang. There was a line of booths in which broiled sausages were sold. A bed of clay several inches thick was laid on a long board, which answered as a counter. On this a charcoal fire was lighted under a gridlron, and the sausages broiled freshly for each visitor at 10 pfennigs each (21/4 cents).

BOOTHS AND RESTAURANTS. At another line of booths broiled fish were sold. There the fire of charcoal embers was made directly on the ground. Sticks were then inserted in the soil and made to incline at a suitable angle over the tire. The fish was carefully cleaned and salted, gashes cut in the sides, and then each stick inserted in the mouth of the fish, which thus slowly broiled over the coals.

There were many open-air restaurants in inclosed spaces, each having its band of music and supplying Its guests with beer and other refresiments. English walauts, which grow here, were sold in great profusion. All over Europe Munich beer Is celebrated, and Munich is par excelience the great beer drinking place. A grand pavilion, decorated with overgreens and flowers, held the seats from which the royal family looked on at the games and sights of the volks fest, and about this the crowd surged for a glimpse at the prince regent, who has assumed his royal cluties since the suicide of Ludwig II in June,

The people idolized the mad king and for gave his debts-40,000,000 mnrks ($10,000,000 -which is the greatest possible proof of their adoration. Yet the madness and joility went on as if he had, never been, this king who lived aloof from ids people as though he were a god .- Munich Cor. Courier-Journal.

MOVEMENT CURE FOR OBESITY.

How the President is Said to be Getting His Ficah Redneed.

Since he came to the White House the president has been rapidly gaining flesh until he now weighs fifty pounds more than he did when he was elected. He does not take any exercise. He drives out for an airing every pleasant afternoon in a comfertable carriage, out the rida doesn't give him any more exercise than it' be spent so much time in a rocklng chair. He is getting so fat as to be uncomfortable as well as ungainty, and has been in consultation with a doctor of the Swedish massage school. The doctor does not prescribe any drugs, nor does he use the Banting aystem of dieting. He simply recommends the movement cure, and his treatment of the president is very funny.

First the doctor makes him lie flat on his back on the floor, stiffen himself out with his arms down at his side, and then raise his feet In the air with his beels together, until his legs are at an angle of forty-five degrees. This is repeated several times, and until one has tried it he cannot realize how difficult and exhausting it is, for none of the joints in the hody can be moved except those at the hips. The next movement is to raise the feet in the same position, and move them around in the nir, so that the beels will describe a circle. This is more difficult still, and mone but accomplished gymnasts can do it at the first attempt.

The third movement is to stretch out on the floor, with the face down, and then raise the body on the hands and toes. After this has been tried the patient is to stand on the tips of his toes and fingers, and make motions as if he were swimming. By going through this process three times a day, at first only a few miliutes, and then longer, as the muscles of the stomach will permit, it is claimed that a fat man can reduce his flesh with remarkable rapidity.-Washington Cor. Omahn Herald.

An Election Inchient.

An incident of the election in Brookfield is too good to be lost, and we give it, simply suppressing the names. A hard working Denocrat on the eve of the election was making a thorough canvass, and called on a young married man to talk over the situation and seeme his vote. He succeeded, and went away telling him he would be there at 5 o'clock the next morning with his team to carry the young man to the polis.

The Democrat had scarcely departed when an enthusiastic Republican went to call on the same young man, and on a similar errand. He, too, talked over the situation and secured the vote. But as it was late the Republican thought be would stay all night, and then early in the morning they would go to the polls together. The next morning promptly the Democrat knocked at the door at 5 o'clock. Here was a pickie; but the wife of the young man and her mother managed to find a way out nicely.

The old lady responded to the call, and said her son-in-law was not up yet. The wife then shoused out that he could not go until he had built the fire. The old indy went to the wood pile and began to split kindlings. The kind hearted Democrat, ir order also to expedito matters, offered to split the wood and build the fire. Off went his overcont and to work he went. As the kindlings were damp it delaved him considerably, but he finally accomplished it. He then began to look around for his man, and behold the bird had flown. While he was building the fire the Republican and his man had stolen out of a side window, and were well on their way to the polis.

The Democrat is still the maddest man in

Dosed by the Bartender,

"Yes," said a Clark street saloonkeeper, "It has got so now that to be a successful and popular bartender one must be a physician. An old man will come in here in the morning with his face looking like a corrugated door mal and his eyes green and glassy He will stare at you for a minute, and then he will hang blmeelf over the railing and teil you that something's wrong with his stomach, and that he must have something to straighten him up. We fix some sort of a dose for the fellow, and if he feels better an hour or two later we are sure of his trade for some time to come,

"Then there's the man who comes in gulping and shivering. Ho says he doesn't know what's the matter with him, and asks the bartender to look at his tongue. A little bicaronate of soda tones up his atomach and sets him on his feet again. And so it goes from morning until night. There's the fellow who wants something for dyspepsia, and the man who says he feels as though a piece of ice had lodged in his stomach. Then there's the toper with a crick in his side, and the dude with the big head, and the merchant who has got to have something for the toothache. It is getting so now that a man who has anything the matter with him goes into a saloon to seek relief. In fact, it is getting so that no man gets too great to ask a barkeeper's advice "-Chlengo Herald.

Imposing on an Expert.

An old California miner told me of an expart assayer who had avoided every snare. He had the babit of taking into the mine he was to lest, bags, in which he carefully deposited the specimens he found, tying, labeling and sealing, then carrying them in the cars to his own home. His reports gained implicit belief, hence the greater desire to deceive bion. A man once followed him to the train with $50 and brited the porter of the sleeping car, into whose charge the bags had been committed, to leave them with him for half an home. He then, by means of line metailie syringes, injected into the bags certain solutions, chlorides, I think, or gold and silver, and returned them maps and to the porter's enstedy. The assayer, unsuspicious, tested every sample in bulk to lind the amount of silver ar I gold, and made a very sanguine report.

On the strength of this the mine was bought of these whose agent the injector was, and placed under charge of the assayer. As soon as work was begun the latter found with horror that he had been imposed on. For weeks, as my informant told me, he drove on, with his hair standing on end, determined to strike some new lead which should justify his report. At length, much lower down, ho "mado a find" which exceeded his first claim, and then he was satisfied. -Leadville is fixed a short blade like a small scythrapidity, the operator occasionally using final discharge at the open end.

IN THE CLEANSING TANK. From this boiler the rags pass to a cleanslug engine, which is a tank of oval plan, the walls of which rise about thirty inches from the floor. The tank is partially divided longitudinally by a straight portion, the ends of the partition reaching toward the walls of the tank far enough to leave a space of the same width as that between the partition's sides and the tank's walk. On one side of this partition, across the center of the tank, revolves a toothed drain, carrying bludes that act on the rags as they pass in the trough between fixed blades at the bottom of the lank, These blades do not cut the rags, but tear them, thus preserving the filer. The cleaning of the rags in the process of tenring is facilitated by a constant atrenm of water. On the side opposite from the benter is a rotary sieve of line mesh that allows the water to pass, but rejects the rags. The water thus lifted passes off through the hollow shaft of the revolving sieve. This, with the action of the bladed drum, induces and keeps up a current around and around the tank. This englue not only cleanses the rags, but reduces them to a semi-pulpy mass known as "baif stuff," which, although clean, is not purely white. It is bleached with chloride of lime and again passes through an engine, when the bleached material, in beaps, resembles solid snow. After this comes the blueing, if the paper is to have a tint, although what is cailed white paper is slightly blued, the sieve and rollers.

SIZING AND CALENDERING.

GOOD WRITING PAPER.

The materials for good writing paper are cotton and linen rags of domestic gathering, supplemented by Importations. The rage come to the mill in baies and are assorted in several grades and then cut into pieces by hand. The cutting is done by girls and women, sitting in front of a bench, to which blade. The rags, picked up by the handful, are drawn across the keen edge with great andstone rifle just as the mower does, so that the dusty room resembles, to the ear, a field of busy mowers. At a second sorting all the buttons, pms, hooks and eyes and harsh seams are removed. The rags then go to a duster, a large eylinder of woven, wire, lnside of which is a shaft carrying a number of bludes of plate Iron set in a spiral form on the shaft and revolving at a rate of speed higher than that of the outer cylinder. This difference of speed, with the spiral setting of the blades, lusures a constant stirring up of the rags, and their gradual progress from one end to the other of the cylinder, and their

The putp is pumped into an elevated tank, from which it is fed to the englie by a delivery gate capable of close adjustment, as upon the amount of pulp fed to the machine depends the ultimate weight of the paper. The pulp flows on to the face of a roller and is passed to an endless apron of flue wire sieve that has imparted to it a jarring motion, to discharge, as much as possible the water. while the sieve retains the aimost impalpable pulp. A set of rolls compresses the pulp wob, which then goes over a series of boxes perforated on the side over which the web passes, the boxes being exhausted of air by a fan as the weh moves. This withdraws the surplus water that has not been removed by

The sheet, having acquired considerable tenacity, is dried by passing between rollers heated by steam. Then comes the sizing, without which the closest textured paper would not receive lik and not spread a blot. The size is the common give of commerce made from rawhide of cattle, but it is employed hot and quito thin. A second partial drying, edging of the continuous web by rotary shears, and a cutting across into sheets, completes the operations of turning liquid, milky pulp into clastic, continuous sheets of a substance aimost impermeable to nir. From "the machine" the sheets, still damp from the Ming, are removed to drying lofts, and are d led by sun and outer air in pleasant weather, and by steam heat in inclement wenther. They are then subjected to the action of hydraulic presses. They are then calendered by means of a muchine of roils three of chilled iron and two of paper. The paper rolls are formed of disks of thin manilia paper, cut lu presses to diameter, with holes through their centers for the reception of the shaft. These are pressed in piace by a hydraulic muchine and turned like the iron rolls. The surface of the turned paper rolls are remarkably smooth,
